Steinbeck Lotería

If you love bingo but want to play a game that's a little more interactive, try playing lotería. This classic Mexican game has images instead of numbers on the boards.

Listen for the caller to sing out a quote or name of an image and then place a token on your board if you have it. The first player to get a full sheet call out "¡Lotería!" wins.

How to start:

Assign 1 person to be the caller.
You'll need to decide which person will be the caller. This person will draw cards from the stack and call the name of the card.

Pass out 1 board to each player.
Each board (also called a tabla) is made up of 9 images. There are 3 images running horizontally and 3 images going vertically to make a grid.
Each board will be different.

Set out tokens for each player to use.
Depending on how many people are playing you'll need around 50 small tokens. The players will place these tokens on the board when the caller names the image. For tokens, consider using:
Small rocks
Dried pinto beans
Bottle caps

Decide if you'd like to play for a prize.
For example, the winner could get candy, toys, art or supplies.

Direct the caller to pick a card and announce it by its name. The caller will take a card from the deck and read the name of the card. The caller could also choose to give say one of John Steinbeck’s famous quotes before saying the name of the card.
For example, the caller could say “The old pipe sives the sweetest smoke” and then say the word pipe, so everyone would look for the image of John Steinbeck’s pipe.

Place a token on the board if you have the image.
If you have the image that the caller named, place a single token on your board. Continue to listen and place tokens on the images you have. Remember that you probably won't have every image that's called.

Keep playing until you cover a full sheet, be the first person to call out "¡Lotería!" in order to win the game.
